Biography

Andy Duncan founded AJD Regeneration in January 2013 to support mainly non-profit organisations with research, feasibility, bid writing and project management.

Clients include community centres, churches, a peace education charity, youth centres, an urban regeneration developer, heritage organisations, a community radio station, a health development charity, charities supporting migrants and refugees and organisations supporting older people living with dementia.

Commissions cover research and feasibility, community engagement, financial and output reporting, procurement, business planning, marketing and small events.

Successes include one of the largest Big Lottery Reaching Communities grant awards in the UK.

A Town Planner by profession, Andy spent 25 years leading high impact community-based regeneration projects in Coventry e.g. Far Gosford Street, Liveability, Road Corridor, Canal Corridor Regeneration.

Clients value Andy's experience, his success with grant applications and tenacious approach to making things happen.
